STEELE - SCARFF

Before an altar banked with palms, white flowers and candelabra, Miss Elizabeth Virginia Scarff, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Howard Scarff, of Willow-Vale Farms, Fallston, Md., became the bride of Richard Floyd Burke Steele Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Floyd Burke Steele, of Petersburg.

The ceremony took place Saturday at 4:30 o'clock in Bethel Presbyterian Church, Madonna, Md., with the Rev. John M. Croup, of Baltimore, officiating, assisted by the Rev. Johannes Mol, of Madonna.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of silk mist designed with yoke of pearl-trimmed Alencon lace and a chapel-length train. Her finger-tip veil fell from a crown of seed pearls and she carried a cascade bouquet of gardenias, stephonitis and ivy.

Miss Margaret Rose Scarff, of Fallston, was her sister's maid-of-honor and was attired in a gown of yellow chiffon taffeta with off-shoulder neckline, fitted bodice and bouffant skirt with harem hemline. She wore a bandeau of matching taffeta veiling and carried a crescent shaped cascade of gold pom-poms and ivy.

Other attendants were: Miss Louise Scott Steele, of Petersburg, sister of the bridegroom; Miss Susan Seth, of Towson, Md.; Miss Olive Worth, of Winnington, Del.; Miss Claire Cay, of Smithfield; Miss Barbara Delmore, of New York City; Mrs. James Eddins, of Jacksonville, S. C. They were attired in dresses identical to the honor attendant and wore similar bandeaux and carried crescent cascades.

Mr. Steele was his son's best man and ushers were: Richard T. Short Jr., Page Hamilton Sutherland, Vincent Lawrence Durand, all of Petersburg; William T. Steele III, of Richmond; Joseph D. Christian, of Smithfield; W. Conly Scarff, of Fallston, brother of the bride.

Master Irwin Scarff, of Bel Air, Md., was ring bearer.

The mother of the bride was attired in a ice-pink dress of appliqued silk organza designed with portrait neckline, back fullness emanating from waist. She wore a hat of sequins in matching color and her flowers were purple orchids.

The mother of the bridegroom wore a dress of green lace with portrait neckline and back fullness. She wore a hat of matching velvet and her flowers were a corsage of gold glamelias.

After a reception in the Hillendale Country Club the couple left for Sea Island, Ga.

For traveling the bride chose a navy silk costume suit with matching accessories.

Mrs. Steele is a graduate of Randolph-Macon Woman's College and a member of Alpha Delta Pi, social sorority.

Mr. Steele is a graduate of Washington and Lee University and is a junior at the Medical College of Virginia, Richmond. He is a member of Phi Chi, medical fraternity.

(Editor's note: Mr. R. F. B. Steele Sr. is the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Steele, of Appomattox).

Health and Beauty

Every woman loves a new bonnet. There is nothing more exciting to the feminine heart than her first glimpse of the season's straw, flowers and felt and fur.

This year's hats are ultrafeminine. Silhouettes are soft and colors are romantic. The trim is elegant and, in many cases, costly.

Hat designers are beginning to give a great deal of time and thought to designing hats that will be becoming with glasses. This is no easy assignment—as any woman who must wear glasses all the time will tell you.

In the first place, the hat must be wider than the widest part of your glasses or hair-do. This flatters your face shape and keeps your glasses from competing with your hat for attention.

When buying hats or glasses, always look at them in a full-length mirror and see how they look from the feet up, as well as from the neck up.

The color of the hat should harmonize with the color of your eyeglass frames. They need not match, but should have the same undertones so as not to crash. Do not be afraid to get a hat in a color contrasting with your frames.

Trim on the hat of a person who must wear glasses should be kept as simple as possible. This does not mean that the hat must be tailored. It can be feminine as well as formal, with the correct use of fabric and trim.

Simple elegance must be the keynote. Always remember that if your doctor tells you that glasses are necessary—wear them no matter how attractive your hat is or how lovely you may look. The entire effect can be destroyed if you are squinting or your eyes are red and tired looking from strain.

About The Home

We are told that the chemise influence has spread to chairs. As in ages past, what a woman wears determies the chair she sits in.

This year's knee-hugging silhouette has raised the sitting level and shortened the depth of the seat cushion of at least one chair. Quite the contrary was true in the eighteenth century, when the panniers of the French distaff aristocracy widened and lowered Louis chairs. In the last century, Victorian women sat in chairs with arms. They were designed so that her hoops would not become enmeshed with the limbs of the furniture.

The Chemise chair combines many developments seen today in other chairs. It has a swivel base that also tips forward. This feature facilitates sitting and rising with ease, and prevents hemlines from sliding up.

The seat cushion of this new chair is nineteen inches off the floor, about an inch or two higher than usual for lounge chairs. The depth of the seat cushion to the back of the chair is twenty-two inches.

Many dining tables and chairs have been made much lower during the past few years in keeping with the modern long and low look so popular. For this reason, is is a good bet that this new chemise influence in furniture is not to be with us for too long.

Not only the general appearance is not quite pleasing, but the chair itself is not as comfortable, in our opinion. However, there is no accounting for taste, and there will doubtless be a number of these new designs sold.

From where I sit ... by Joe Marsh

Traffic Stopper

Every so often I see little things that prove that folks really are pretty wonderful!

Take last Saturday. I was downtown when I saw a middle-aged woman about to cross a busy street. Just as she started, the light changed, and she hurried back to the curb. But the big moving van that was first in the long line of cars had not moved.

"You cross first," the driver of the van yelled. "But you're holding up traffic," the woman said. "Lady," replied the driver with a good-natured wink, "let's just say you're so good looking you're stopping traffic!"

From where I sit, something like that makes the "doer" and the "receiver" both feel mighty good. It's like the friendly feeling you get when your hostess goes out of her way to serve you beer—even though she doesn't drink it herself. That's pretty wonderful, too!

Highway Death Record Could Be Better in '58

Richmond, Va.- Traffic crashes in Virginia during the first half of 1958 took 18 less lives than during the comparable period of 1957, despite a rise of about 2.3 per cent in traffic volumes, Colonel C. W. Woodson, Jr., Superintendent of State Police and Chairman of the Governor's Highway Safety Committee announced today.

This was a reduction of from 396 to 378, or 4.5 per cent. However, non collision crashes, involuving no contact with a second vehicle, continued to rise with 140 deaths as against 138 for the 1957 period. This constituted a rise of from 37.1 to 39.4 per cent of total deaths.

Commenting, Colonel Woodson observed that this type of crash usually embodies the worst types of driver fault as the car almost invariably leaves the roadway as a result.

Also on the brighter side, he said, a drop of 30.9 per cent in pedestrian deaths saw 26 less killed than the 84 of 1957. Bicycle deaths rose from three to four but deaths at railway crossings were down from seven to five. Motor vehicle with motor vehicle crashes remained fairly constant with 108 killing 148 people in 1958 as against 115 crashes killing 156 people in 1957.

The reduction in pedestrian deaths, Colonel Woodson said, points strongly towards the lowest number ever killed during an entire year. The banner year was 1955 when only 102 pere killed and at the half-way mark, there were 69 deaths.

An increase of 16.3 per cent in women drivers involved appeared as a sharp decrease of 7.8 per cent in Virginia residents. Crashes involving a law violation dropped from 84 to 79.7 per cent of the fatals, but those involving drinking drivers maintained the steady upward trend of past years with a rise of from 33.2 to 34.7 per cent.

A 14 per cent drop in crashes involving trucks, tractors and tractor trailers was also noted.
